November 2019

NCA Families,

Autumn is truly one of my favorite times of the year for many reasons. Nature is full of beauty, school has fallen into a rhythm, and holiday excitement is approaching.

This season for me also allows more time for reflecting and looking forward. Summer is such a busy time at the school and the first month of school is a lot of “settling in” in the classrooms, into routines, and as a school, adjusting to changes that happen. During recent reflection and planning, a word resonated with me...“culture.”

Our school is incredibly special in many ways, and we have a really amazing group of students, staff, faculty, specialists, and families that make up our community. Each school community builds a culture within themselves and we, as a group, set that culture together. It is built through much of what we say, do, and how we treat one another. It is built by each one of us as we are all part of this community.

There are so many things about our school culture that I love and as we move forward, with each interaction, we build our culture together. In this community, we have many different people and challenges will naturally occur but it is in how we handle them that builds a culture. I am so honored to serve in my position on this campus and am so proud of the culture we are already building. As we dive deeper into this school year, remember that you are part of our community, that we are thankful you are here, and that you make a difference in the culture at NCA. We are building NCA together!

In His grip,

Kim DeLeon
